Bringing Library to the Farm boy in Ireland over twenty years ago, but have not forgotten since. It was a strange night and a strange company. Everybody around me claimed to be Irish, but not one of them spoke Irish or English, for the noble Lithuanian family with which I am passing my Christmas sholiday is descended from one of the Irish chiefs who left his native country after the fail of Limerick.

One member of the family was abtent young Rory, who had ridden into town on some business connected with the estate, and who had promised to bring me back any news froin Russaich that key to hold of, for it is the Russian, not the Irish, situation that, accounts for my being in this part of the world. Rory had not returned when I retired to my before many hours that night.

I was awakened by a knocking and my door and the voice of, Rory, Front the Turs, which he had not taken of, and from the snow on his foxakin papakha, I opencined in the first and the reading marker from the local purpose of his horse and come artisight to my room His face was financed and his eyes shone. and from the snow on his fox-skin papakha, I concluded that he had just jumped off his horse and coins graphy to my room. His face was a flushed and the eyes shone. "What is it. Horry" and I. "Any news from the Red frontier." "Great as "Feedled, speaking. "Great as "Feedled, speaking. "Great as "Feedled, speaking that he was the state of the first freepolipies in precognized. The horrors of the Civil War are now things of the past." He mistranslated "Free State" as "Respublica," but he had got the gist of the peace terms all right. To me Rory's message was more than news. It was the rolling back of the state for fine stone from a natiop's sepuichee. And my hosts, whose ancestors had left freland over two hundred years ago, were as affected as I.

the other day the conductor remarked—"That child looks more than three years old." "I know he does, conductor," was the mother's reply.
"Phat child has had a log of trouble."

Management Of The Dairy Herd

arrive at an understanding in these matters was to use the Babook test and the milk scales. Another thing to remember was that good feeding must begin with the calf. Another point was that cows should be studied individually, and not be fed promiscuously and all alike.

Public Opinion And The Law

Public Opinion And The Law.

In most emphatic manner, as recorded by positively overwhelming major itses at the polish, the people of the three Prairie Provinces declared that they not only desired the prohibition of the sale of all intoticating liquors for beverage purposes but that they wanted a stor put to all importation of such liquors into these Proyinces. In a word, the miss of the people expressed themselves as decidedly in favor of complete prohibition as applied to the liquor business in all its forms.

Acting upon the declared will of the people, the Legislatures of Mantoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta passed prohibitory laws to the full extent of the powers enjoyed by them, and the Dominion Parliament supplemented such legislation by an Act under which the importation of liquor into tities Provinces wan made illegal.

It should naturally follow in a presumably lawabiding British country that the traffic in intoicants for beverage purposes would cease, and that the number of violators of the law would be few and confined to that criming class to be found grey where who feel all haw at defiance. It was to be presumed also that, faken as a whole, the citizens of these Provinces would be altert and united in seeing that the law they had themselves invoked was observed, and that those few who deliberately violating were sought out and punished.

and punished. If a nan sees another setting fire to this neighbor's house, or discovers thin in the act of burglary, he does not remain silent and inactive, but immediately notifies the police and gives all the assistance it is in his power to give to have the eriminal apprehended and convicted. But if this same citizen witnesses an open violation of the prohibitory-liquor laws he will, an inic cases out of a bundred, not only remain silent and finactive, but will actually enjoy a hearly laugh over the appetance of the laws violation. And if by any chance he is summoned to give evidence in the matter his ignorance of the whole proceeding proves to be simply colossal.

Yet these self saine citizens are denouncing the Governments for failure to enforce prohibition, are critical of the moneys being expended in the effort to enforce the law, and are found expressing the opinion that prohibition is a failure, if prohibition is a failure, as these people say, and if the law officers are not wholly successful in enforcing the law, who is responsible? Does the blance read on the Legislatures which passed the laws at the behest of the voters, or on the Governments, law officers and nolice, who are endeavoring to the best of their ability to have the laws observed? No, the blance reads with the people themselves who, while having respect for other laws, seem to regard prohibition laws as a huge joke.

If bootlegging is rampant; if all manner of roll econocitions are being add and consumed; if "home brew" is the product of many homes in defiance of the law and to the utter demoralization of hundreds to people, not Legislatures, nor Governments, nor police, but the average, citizen, who fiance of the law and to the utter demoralization of hundreds of people, not Legislatures, nor Governmentis, nor police, but the average, citteen, who would be insulted and indignant if he was charged with not being a good citteen but a disloyal one, is alone responsible.

No legislation, no matter how good it may be, nor how well-framed, nor mow efficiently enforced, can be effective and successful juniess it has the sympathy of an overwhelming public opinion and the support of the individual, citties.

sympathy of an overwhelming public opinion and the support of the individual citizen.

It is this lack of public conscience in regard to this question that is bringing the probibilition have into disrepute. And to the extent that the enactments of the Legislatures and Parliament in this respect are heigh founded and violated, all hav is weakened and a premium placed on law-breaking and lawlessness. Surely, the man or woman who wlaks at the violation of one law has failed to appreciate the fact that he or she is thereby undergind ing all the forces of law and order which exist for his or her projection.

In view of the failure of most, people to regard the probablicin laws feeriously, and the very apparent lack of any public connecides on the issue, one would be inclined to-think thist-the people had changed their views and that here is no sinch thing as any pronounced public opinion on the question.
Nevertheless it is conceded in all quarters that there is strong public opinion in tavor of probibilition, and that if the question was again submitted to a vote of the people probibiliton would be overwhelmidity sustained.
Under these circumstances it is imperative that all good, Jay-abiding cilizens abandon their present indifference on the subject, of the violation of the jitugor laws. It is essential if the law-be kept to the statute books catterns anamon their present numerines on the angiet, of the violation of the filator laws. It is essential if the law-be kept on the statute books that it be observed. That can only be done through a united public opinion backing up-the law, and actively cooperating with the representatives of constituted authority in seeing that it is respected.
